Centre for World Environmental History, 27th May, 4 p.m. Fulton, 113

We have a very special Centre for Environmental History seminar discussion next week (27th May). We're very happy to welcome Peter Heehs, an acclaimed American Historian who works in India. Peter's work focuses on Indian cultural, religious and political history as well as more recently on the idea of the Self. Peter is the author of numerous books and articles, and additionally become a focal point for discussions in India around freedom of expression, censorship and book burning.

The format of the seminar will be that Peter will give a short paper on different conceptions of the Self, from Ancient Greek through to Derrida. This will be followed by a reply from the delightful Jacob Berkson and then a general discussion.

All are very welcome to attend!
