Room 202, Fulton

Social Work at a Time of Crisis

Dr Reima Ana Maglajlic, University of Sussex

Organisation of Social Services in Extreme Events: Lessons from social work research

In this presentation, Rea will summarise key lessons on the organisation of social services facing extreme events - such as natural disasters - including good practice. These are based on a comprehensive review of social work research over the past three decades.

Rachel Larkin, University of Sussex

Engaging Young Survivors of War and Community Violence in Social Research: Whose choice?

Rachel will reflect on some of the ethical and practical issues in involving young survivors of community violence in research about their lives.

Dr Lauren Wroe, Social Workers Without Borders

Social Workers Without Borders: Social work in and against the State

Lauren will look back at the first year of SWWB - an organisation of social work activists working in the UK and France to promote social work solidarity with refugees, asylum seekers and vulnerable migrants.
She will also give advice on how to get involved.
