We are seeking to appoint a Lecturer in Child Development and Social Work - Social Care working in collaboration with the Sussex Rudd Centre.

We seek a specialist in the field of Child Development and Social Work – Social Care with emphasis on young people and practice, whose research, teaching and professional experience embraces interdisciplinary approaches to promoting understanding of the interplay between family processes and children and young people’s health, mental health, wellbeing and development and will contribute to our world-leading expertise in this area at the University of Sussex.

You will have a track record of high quality publications, evidence of the potential to secure external research funding and experience of knowledge exchange activities in areas specific to and cognate with the focus of this post.

Together with colleagues in the School of Psychology, the Department of Social Work and Social Care, and the Brighton and Sussex Medical School, you will convene and contribute to a new and innovative specialist research-to-practice education and development programme being created at the University of Sussex, led by the Sussex Rudd centre, aimed at front-line professionals (CPD), undergraduate and postgraduate students focusing on improved practice delivery for professionals working with vulnerable children and families.

You will provide research supervision to doctoral students, contribute as appropriate to other undergraduate and postgraduate teaching within the School of Education and Social Work and be expected to undertake appropriate administrative duties within the School/Department and University.

You will contribute to research and related activities within and across Sussex Rudd Centre partners, including academic departments/Schools, relevant research centres/groups, and the wider University and local communities. Through this post and in collaboration with programme colleagues, you will also work closely with partners NatCen (http://natcen.ac.uk/) and CoramBAAF (https://corambaaf.org.uk/) in developing and facilitating strategically aligned research-practice-policy projects.
For further information please contact Professor Gordon Harold (Director, Sussex Rudd Centre, g.harold@sussex.ac.uk, or Dr Russell Whiting (Head of Department for Social Work and Social Care, R.Whiting@sussex.ac.uk).

The University of Sussex values the diversity of its staff and students and we welcome applicants from all backgrounds.

2. The Research Centre / School / Department

The School of Education and Social Work is seeking to appoint a Lecturer in Child Development and Social Work and Social Care as part of an innovative initiative led by the Sussex Rudd Centre in partnership with the School of Psychology, the School of Education and Social Work, and the Brighton and Sussex Medical School.

The Sussex Rudd Centre
The Andrew and Virginia Rudd Centre at the University of Sussex is an internationally recognised multidisciplinary Research Centre bridging the disciplines of Psychology, Medicine, Education, Social Work, Law and working with multiple practice and policy partners in the UK and internationally. The Centre was established thanks to a generous donation from Andrew and Virginia Rudd.

The core aim of this innovative new Centre is to advance insights into the development, mental health, health and wider well-being of children, adolescents and young adults in the context of family life and professional practice, with a particular emphasis on the specific challenges faced by children, parents/carers and families in transition (e.g. adoption, foster-care, parental separation/divorce, other family types). For example, the Centre leads and engages state-of-the-art scientific and practice-based advances to inform knowledge of how adoption, family separation, institutionalisation, foster-care, maltreatment and other family processes influence children's mental health and development, with a core orientation toward improving understanding of how supports may be offered early to those most vulnerable and at-risk (including professionals working with at-risk children and families).

A unique and internationally recognised initiative in the UK, the Sussex Rudd Centre is fundamentally directed towards advancing scientific knowledge, practice improvements and policy developments aimed at improving the quality of life and long-term life chances of vulnerable children and their families. It is the ambition of the Sussex Rudd Centre to promote its core objectives through three interrelated and complementary domains of activity. First, development of research and real-world applications of research findings. Second, research led professional education and development. Third, engagement and partnership with community professionals/practitioners, service providers, policy makers, family advocacy agencies, as well as parents, children and families. The Sussex Rudd Centre is a formal partnership between the School of Psychology, School of Education and Social Work at the University of Sussex, and the Brighton and Sussex Medical School which is co-hosted by the University of Brighton.

School of Education and Social Work
The School was created in August 2009, bringing together two long-established and thriving departments – the Department of Education and the Department of Social Work & Social Care. The School’s over-arching strategic goal is to maintain and further develop a thriving and sustainable environment that contributes at the highest level to the disciplines of Education and Social Work. The School has a commitment to contributing to social justice at the global, international and national levels in terms of our research, teaching and professional education activities. Connections with other disciplines - such as psychology, health, law and sociology - are foundational for our success in current and future research, political and policy environments, and a developing stream of interdisciplinary activity unites the work of colleagues in both Departments, with common interests including the study of childhood and youth, wellbeing across the lifecourse, pedagogy and inter-professional policy and practice. The School has a large number of both home and international doctoral students, and is a core member of the University’s ESRC Doctoral Education and development Partnership, under the auspices of the South East Network for Social Sciences.

The School is led by the Head of School, and both departments are led by a Head of Department, appointed on fixed-term rotation basis from within the senior faculty. The School’s work is supported by a Deputy Head of School, and 5 internal Directorships with oversight of teaching and learning, research & knowledge exchange, student experience, doctoral studies and recruitment and admissions. The academic work of the School is supported by 23 members of professional services staff located within the School and led by the School Administrator, as well as by a range of central university services. The School hosts a number of research centres, including the Centre for Innovation and Research in Wellbeing and the Centre for Innovation and Research in Childhood and Youth.

The Department of Social Work and Social Care
The Department of Social Work and Social Care has 25 members of staff, delivering a portfolio of programmes and continuing professional development activities, alongside a thriving research programme. The Department has been ranked 1st for social work in the UK by The Guardian University Guide 2014 and 2015, and The Times and Sunday Times Good University Guide 2014. It was ranked 2nd in the UK by The Complete University Guide 2014 and 5th in The Guardian University Guide in 2018. In the 2014 REF Social Work was ranked joint 31st out of 62 submissions in the combined UoA for Social Work and Social Policy.

The Department is home to courses in Social Work, Childhood and Youth and Wellbeing at undergraduate, postgraduate and research levels. Alongside our qualifying and post-qualifying social work programmes, the MA in Childhood and Youth Studies attracts home and international students and is closely connected to the cross-School BA in Childhood and Youth Studies. The new MRes in Wellbeing has recently been awarded status as the first part (+1) of a collaborative doctoral studies programme under the auspices of the South East Network for Social Sciences.

We have excellent relationships with local employers and social work placement providers ensuring a good range of learning opportunities, including under the auspices of the South Coast Regional Centre for Social Work Education, a Department of Education funded Teaching Partnership. Our commitment to high-quality teaching and pedagogic innovation is evidenced through our league table successes and the number of academic faculty holding local and national teaching awards. Our excellent partnerships with local social welfare employers have also led to a strong portfolio of Continuing Professional Development courses, and underpin many of our research and knowledge exchange activities

The Department’s research is focused around three research centres, providing vital hubs of activity and focal points for collaborative work and shared engagement, including with other University centres, such as the Rudd Centre.

School of Psychology
The School of Psychology at the University of Sussex is one of the largest centres for the study of Psychology in the UK, with leading researchers, and specialists in every discipline. We are a dynamic, exciting and world research-leading School, with strong collaborative links with the Schools of Life Sciences, Education and Social Work, Engineering and Informatics, Brighton and Sussex Medical School, and the Sussex Partnership NHS Foundation Trust. The School of Psychology’s research at Sussex was ranked 10th out of 82 submissions in the Research Excellence Framework 2014.
