

Activism and Academia Forum for Objectivity, Reflexivity and Moral Engagement

A Monthly Seminar Series at the Centre for World Environmental History, Sussex University

Seminar 2: The Struggle for Reparation for Afrika, Justice for Mau Mau in Kenya and Eco Colonialism

Sam Hawke, lawyer and activist, will talk about his work in Kenya recently on justice for the Mau Mau former fighters within the wider notion of reparations for Africa

Estehr Stanford-Xosei, Scholar-activist and radio Broadcaster and co-vice chair of the Pan-African Reparations Coalition in Europe (PARCOE), will present the movement for reparations for Africa, reparation as a concept of environmental and social justice, and against all forms of enslavement

Friday 25 October 2013 12:00 – 14:00 (Room MS2.10, Medical School)

Isabelle Stengers (Universite Libre de Bruxelles) in a recent Public Discussion at CRESC Annual Conference claimed that for academics to reclaim their practice, they would need to become a resistance movement in the face of the new barbarism that is upon us, convince themselves and others, colleagues and students alike, that resistance is possible.

In the second seminar we will discuss the struggle for reparation in Afrika through the eyes of a lawyer who worked on the Mau Mau case in Kenya, and an activist in the movement for slavery reparation, asking whether post-colonialism has happened.
