6	Improve the process for collecting feedback from staff who leave the University to understand whether gender inequality is a contributory factor.	4.1.(iv) P45	Overall it is not clear whether there are any gender related trends within our pattern of leavers and we do not collect data on the reasons for staff leaving Sussex. We introduced an exit questionnaire in August 2019 in order to gain further insight and data from this will be used to assess any gender differences, e.g. if higher proportions of men are leaving for higher-level jobs or if staff are leaving due to gender-related issues. 7	Review the grade 10 equal pay data to understand the equal pay issue to address including a review of the current pay framework for grade 10	4.1.(v) P47	Our mean gender pay gap is 22.5% (March 2020). We have a target to halve our mean gender pay gap by 2025 (target is 10.4%). We have identified the gender balance in the top quartile (37%F) as a major contributor to our gender pay gap. Under-representation of female academics at grade 10 is the key driver in this pay quartile, in particular at grade 10 band A. As part of our gender pay gap reporting, we have started to undertake annual equal pay reviews. Our most recent figures show a slight pay gap at grade 10 band A (2019 equal pay review) and this will also be contributing to our gender pay gap. We understand that different disciplines operate in different markets and that in grade 10 band A we have a wide range of jobs beyond the academic roles such as the senior executive. We will take this into account in our detailed analysis of grade 10 band A	H	(a) Complete analysis of grade 10 pay (b) Publish definitions of grade 10 pay bandings	Apr 21 Sep 21	Reward Mgr	Increased female representation in grade 10 band A will reduce the equal pay gap at grade 10 and the overall gender pay gap. NB The target increase reflects low turnover rates and potential for cancellation of discretionary pay rounds which would move existing staff through the pay bands at grade 10 & recruitment freezes due to COVID-19 which may bring new staff in at this grade.

8	Publish intersectional pay gap data in relation to ethnicity and gender	4.1.(v) P47	There is an under-representation of women in academic grades 9 and 10. 9	Review guidance on starting salaries to reduce unconscious gender bias in these decisions	4.1.(v) P48	A contributor to the gender pay gap and the equal pay gap at grade 10 may be the fact that women are negotiating lower starting salaries than men, especially in the top grades. By developing guidance on starting salary, any possible unconscious bias which results in men being appointed on higher starting salaries than women will be reduced. We will also remove current pay on application forms which can lead to unconscious bias based on previous remuneration. Negotiation of starting salary will be within clear guidelines that take account of disciplinary differences in pay.	H	(a) Publish guidance on starting salaries. 10	Review the effectiveness of our protocol for search agencies recruiting to senior roles to ensure diverse long lists and set revised target of 50% F candidates on short list	5.1.(i) P52	Under-representation of women in academic senior roles is a key factor contributing to our gender pay gap. It is therefore important that all longlists and shortlists have a diverse representation. We agreed a protocol that is issued to recruitment agencies/executive search agencies instructing them to aim for at least 30% of females on the longlist (and justify where this cannot be achieved). We have asked for detailed monitoring data to be provided as part of issuing any contract. We will now increase this target to 50% of females on the longlist. 15	Seek more detailed feedback about the appraisal process through the staff engagement survey	5.2.(ii) P65	We have not surveyed appraisal as a discrete activity. In our 2018 staff survey 50% of academic staff said that their line manager provided regular and constructive feedback and there was no significant difference in responses of female and male staff to this question, (50% female, 53% male). The satisfaction rate drops to 39% for staff who have been in post between 5 and 10 years. The University's Organisational Development Unit held focus groups and circulated an appraisal questionnaire to academic staff in summer 2019 to gain feedback about the appraisal process. Measures (i) and (ii) exist in some Schools as part of their Athena SWAN work and the plan is to standardise as an opportunity for all returners. Feedback from focus groups with academic returners (summer 2018) shows that many struggle to relaunch their research careers on return from leave due to their conflicting teaching demands. 20	Introduce enhance shared-parental pay provisions by March 2024	5.3.(v) P78	We currently offer shared parental pay at the statutory rate, and take-up has been fairly low. This action responds to calls from male and female members of staff for the University to encourage and support men to take up caring roles, further promoting equality in the distribution of paid and unpaid work. Currently there is a financial disincentive for men to take shared parental leave in a situation where their partner is benefitting from enhanced maternity pay. Staff feedback on uptake of shared parental leave shows that this financial disparity is a key reason for low uptake.
