

Mentoring in Media, Arts and Humanities

Our aspiration is for everyone in the School to have the opportunity to be involved in the mentoring process whether as mentor or mentee. To this end, a loosely constituted 'college of mentors' has been established, comprising colleagues who have received training as mentors. Current members are:

Andrew Blair

Jim Endersby

Carmen Rios Garcia

Wendy Hitchmough

Claire Langhamer

Thor Magnussen

Jeremy Page

Joanne Paul

Simon Williams

Jules Winchester

There are currently two University-wide schemes in operation. Information on the first, which aims to match mentees with mentors from other Schools or divisions, can be found at:

Mentoring : Organisational Development : Schools and services : University of Sussex

The second scheme is intended for colleagues on Education and Scholarship contracts as part of the 'Dare to Transform' initiative. This scheme aims to pair faculty at Senior Lecturer or Professor level with faculty at Lecturer level. The scheme is currently actively seeking to recruit more mentors as more colleagues transfer from Teaching Fellow to academic contracts. Colleagues interested in engaging with the scheme, whether as mentors or mentees, will find the relevant documentation at:

<https://www.sussex.ac.uk/organisational-development/mentoring/forms>

Mentoring can play a key role in professional development, and it is in this spirit that colleagues are invited to engage with the existing provision with a view to ensuring the benefits of mentoring are available to everyone in the School.