Choosing your modules

Please read the following carefully so you complete the module section correctly:

- List 6 modules for each term in order of preference; although you will not be taking all of these modules it may be that some modules may be withdrawn or may no longer be offered.
- Read the advisory information on how to select modules before listing them; we will allocate your modules from the ones you choose below so please give this careful consideration.
- If a module has several options listed indicate your preferred option, e.g. in “Period of English Literature” option might be ‘1832-1914’.
- Make sure that you list title, code and level of module.
- If you select computing modules, let us know if you have programming skills and in what language; use the special comments box.
- It is important you select the correct modules for the period you intend to study at Sussex. Autumn teaching means that the module is only taught in the autumn semester; spring teaching means it is only taught in the spring semester. Autumn and spring teaching means the module is taught over two semesters, i.e. a full year. It is not possible to take autumn only of a full year module or to join a full year module in the spring semester.
- Level 3 = year 0 (sub-degree); Level 4 = year 1; Level 5 = year 2; Level 6 = year 3 (final year)
- You are generally expected to take 60 credits per semester and 120 credits for the full year (minimum of 90 and maximum of 150). A minimum of 45 credits and a maximum of 75 credits may be taken in one semester.
