If you want to check, edit or update the reading list for one of your modules, you first need to check whether a list exists and, second, whether you have the ability to edit it.

1. Is there a list?
   - Go to liblists.sussex.ac.uk/index.html
   - Search your module code and/or title.

     Search for module code, title or subject

   - If it appears, skip to point “3” below; if it doesn’t, follow “2”.

2. There isn’t a list.
   - Email readinglists.lib@sussex.ac.uk. Give us the module code, title and term(s) in which it runs.
   - We will create the empty list and email you a link to accept the ability to edit it.

3. There is a list.
   - Click My Lists and log-in. Does the module appear that you wish to edit?
   - If it doesn’t, email readinglists.lib@sussex.ac.uk, tell us the name of the module and we will send you a link to become an editor of it.
   - If it does, look at the following sheets for how to edit your lists and add items.
   - If you find a list for an older version of the module (for 11/12, for example), let us know. We can copy over that list for the new year and email you editing permissions.