The Department of Sociology and Criminology at the University of Sussex is looking to appoint a new academic member of staff to contribute to its Criminology program. This will be a permanent position (subject to probation) starting at lecturer level.

The post holder will contribute to the research profile of Criminology at Sussex through theoretically informed research and publication. They will also deliver high quality research-led teaching at both the undergraduate and postgraduate level.

As an equal opportunities employer, we welcome applications from all suitably qualified persons.

As we currently have an under-representation in the Department of a number of groups – in particular BAME and LGBTQ+ we would particularly welcome applications from people who are members of these groups. All appointments will be made on merit.

Please contact Professor Dean Wilson, Head of Sociology and Criminology, at dean.wilson@sussex.ac.uk for informal enquiries.

For full details and how to apply see our vacancies page

The University of Sussex values the diversity of its staff and students and we welcome applicants from all backgrounds.

2. The School / Division

Please find further information regarding the Department of Sociology and Criminology at <http://www.sussex.ac.uk/sociology/>

The Department of Sociology and Criminology is one of the three departments which form the School of Law, Politics and Sociology at the University of Sussex. These three vibrant academic units all strive for excellence in teaching and are all engaged in cutting-edge research.

In both teaching and research the School engages with key issues of contemporary concern, as well as with historical, philosophical and theoretical dimensions of its subject areas. It increasingly draws on the synergies between its three related disciplines.

The Department of Sociology and Criminology is a thriving and ambitious department which has grown significantly in strength and numbers over the past 5 years.

The Department is highly committed to teaching and research excellence. It is located in the newly refurbished Freeman building on the University of Sussex campus.

The Department of Sociology and Criminology is responsible for all teaching and research in Sociology and Criminology at the University of Sussex. There are approximately 25 members of Faculty. The total undergraduate and postgraduate student population is currently around 635 students.

The ethos of LPS is a commitment to its core disciplines (Law, Politics and Sociology), while seeking to make the most of the synergies that arise from the three disciplines comprising one School. Current and new appointees are encouraged to make use of the inter-disciplinary opportunities in the School, but only to the extent that individuals wish.
