

BA American Studies and History
Course Handbook
2018/19

Welcome from the Head of HAHP School

Since its inception in 1961, the University of Sussex has consistently ranked among the best British universities for the study of arts and humanities.

In 2009 the University brought together four leading programmes - History, Art History, Philosophy and American Studies - into a new dedicated School of study. The subjects we teach focus on the ability to reason, to analyse, to take critical positions and to expound them. Your studies with us will be an intensive high-level training in how to think - whatever your area of study - fitting you with the skills for a wide range of careers.

The School of History, Art History and Philosophy (HAHP) combines high-quality teaching, cutting edge international research and a friendly and supportive atmosphere.

Professor Liz James

Head of School of History, Art History and Philosophy

Welcome from the Head of Department of American Studies

Welcome to the American Studies and History BA degree! As an American Studies student (with or without a joint degree with another subject) your home school is HAHP, where American Studies is located. Half your studies will be in History (also in HAHP) and you will graduate with the rest of the American Studies cohort - many of whom are joint honours students with English, History, Politics or Film - and with other students from the HAHP School.

This is the course handbook for your joint degree. It contains important information about how degree course and related matters are organised, which you will need to know as you progress through your years of study here. Please read it carefully. We look forward to meeting you and wish you an enjoyable and fruitful time at Sussex. You are now a member of a higher education academic community. There will be exciting challenges ahead, and we look forward to helping you master them.

All of your lecturers and seminar tutors have office hours twice a week – do by all means avail yourself of the time that they place at your disposal. Your lecturers and tutors are friendly, approachable, and knowledgeable people. They want you to feel at home at Sussex, help you to succeed as a student, and help you to grow as a person.

I am always happy to meet with you during my office hours or by appointment, and I very much look forward to the opportunity of getting to know you.

Doug Haynes, B342, Director, Sussex Centre for American Studies

Key Contacts in your Department and Schools

The American Studies Department sits within the wider unit of the School of History, Art History and Philosophy (HAHP). Administration of your degree and modules is organised by American Studies although half of your modules are taught by History. HAHP is situated in Arts A on campus (for a campus map, please see <https://www.sussex.ac.uk/webteam/gateway/file.php?name=campusmap.pdf&site=271>) .

Your most immediate place to go for help with your degree is:

HAHP School Office, Arts A7

Your first point of contact for any administrative issues or difficulties that arise, such as changing modules, change of contact details, etc is:

American Studies Departmental Co-ordinator: Arts A7, americanstudies@sussex.ac.uk

Your joint degree convenor is the second person you should contact with regard to any issues arising from the joint nature of your degree: Melissa Milewski
M.L.Milewski@sussex.ac.uk A165

Other useful contacts are:

Head of American Studies Doug Haynes, Arts B342, D.E.Haynes@sussex.ac.uk

Head of School Liz James, Arts A130, E.James@sussex.ac.uk

School Director of Student Experience

Hester Barron, Arts A151, H.Barron@sussex.ac.uk

School Director of Teaching and Learning

Kathleen Stock, Arts A114, K.M.Stock@sussex.ac.uk

School Administrator HAHP Deborah Jackson-Smith, Arts A115,
D.K.Jackson-Smith@sussex.ac.uk

In addition, you can find out the contact details of your lecturers and seminar tutors, by checking Sussex Direct (see p.12).

How we contact you

We will use your university email address to contact you (not a private one).

Therefore, please check it regularly for important course and module information.

The BA American Studies and History degree

As an interdisciplinary student, there will be small differences in tutors' expectations of you between the modules you take, which stretch across different Schools and subject areas: English, History, Film, Music, etc. Therefore, please do take the opportunity to talk to your tutors and other members of the American Studies faculty; visit them in their office hours, email them, have coffee with them if necessary, to find out how best to write essays and give presentations and perform the academic tasks your degree involves. Likewise with your History tutors, some of whom will be the same people! Substantive differences in style and approach towards assessment across your Humanities-based subjects will be minimal. In fact, you will find it productive to learn how different disciplines work alongside one another. But it is good to be prepared. This degree is a challenging and rewarding one exactly because it demands your engagement and flexibility of thought. You will be taking a wider variety of modules than other students and experiencing the cultures of a number of different Schools and learning styles. This will prepare you for the year abroad in the U.S. and will equip you further for the independent thought and research that your final year work will entail.

BA American Studies and History course aims

The aims of the American Studies course are to:

- Have gained knowledge of the region broadly defined, across a range of disciplines and historical periods
- Have learned to appreciate and understand a range of theoretical approaches to the study of the U.S. and will have gained specialised knowledge in one disciplinary approach.
- Be able to analyse the production, consumption and reception of texts within their historical and cultural context.
- Be able to appreciate a range of literary, historical and political traditions and their effects on cultural formations and identities.
- Have benefited from the educational and cultural experience of a Year Abroad and contributed to the international mission of the University through this aspect of the course.
- Have developed the intellectual and practical skills needed to learn independently.
- Be able to communicate and explain what they have learned clearly in written and oral form.
- Have developed skills that will prepare them for employment in a wide range of contexts or for further study.

The aims of the History course are:

1. Develop knowledge and understanding of the human past.
2. Foster awareness and understanding of historical processes which have a direct or indirect bearing on the present.
3. Encourage respect for historical context and evidence.
4. Reflect critically on differing interpretations of the medium and distant past.
5. To impart particular skills and qualities of mind relevant to the discipline of history.
6. To satisfy key criteria of historical knowledge and method, including an awareness of span and change over time across geographical range.
7. Engage with primary as well as secondary sources.
8. Reflect on the theoretical underpinnings of the historical discipline.
9. Foster an appreciation of the diversity of historical specialisms (including social, economic, cultural, political, intellectual, gender, oral, and environmental history).

10. Satisfy progression requirements by conducting i) survey history, ii) particular historical topics or short periods, iii) comparative and thematic history, iv) historiography, v) documentary-based special subjects.

American Studies and History course learning outcomes

The American Studies and History course learning outcomes are as follows (“course learning outcomes’ are the skills, abilities and characteristics we expect you to acquire over the length of your American Studies and History degree course). By the end of your time at Sussex, we expect you will:

Have acquired a range of core and personal attributes, cognitive, research, practical, and transferable skills (HAHP Core Transferable Skills).

Have gained an understanding of the social, cultural, and historical context in which texts are produced and read.

Have gained knowledge of a range of literary and/or historical and/or political texts from different periods, including before 1800.

Have demonstrated awareness of, and ability to use and evaluate a diverse range of relevant information and research resources, including major internet-based resources.

Have demonstrated awareness and understanding of relevant vocabulary of contributory methodologies and theories that are relevant to the US, and will have the capacity to assess the merits of contrasting approaches.

Be able to recognise, represent, and critically reflect upon ideas and concepts from other cultures, especially North American.

Have gained specialised knowledge in one disciplinary approach to the US.

Have studied the US through interdisciplinary approaches to the subject area.

Have demonstrated detailed knowledge of and critical engagement with the US broadly defined.

Have undertaken close work on primary source material and carry out intensive critical work on such source material (Contemporary Sources).

Have a broad and comparative understanding of the history of more than one society, culture or state (Geographical Range).

Have understood historical process over an extended period.

Have developed an awareness of continuity and change over an extended time span (Time Depth).

Have developed the historian's skills and qualities of mind.

Reflect critically on the nature of the discipline, its social rationale, its theoretical underpinnings and its intellectual standing (Critical Awareness).

Critically engage with a variety of approaches to history and critically engage with the concepts and methodologies of other disciplines where appropriate (Diversity of Specialisms)

Formulate, execute, and complete an extended piece of writing under appropriate supervision (Extended Writing)

Module Information

The most up-to-date and accurate information on the modules you can take as an American Studies joint student with History is here:

<http://www.sussex.ac.uk/hahp/internal/americanstudies/ugcourses/2018/TV711U>

You have to take core modules; you can choose the options you would like. Detailed information on modules is also available on this page.

Study Abroad Year

You will spend your third year studying at one of our US or Canadian partners' campuses. Our range of partner institutions represents every facet of the American experience and includes over 40 American institutions spread across the country and encompassing many different kinds of university and style of educations, from the UC system to Brooklyn College. The preparation, research and selection process for your year abroad happens during your second year. You will receive advice and help from the Year Abroad Office and from the Year Abroad Officer in American Studies, currently Anne-Marie Angelo, Arts A153, A.Angelo@sussex.ac.uk

See here for the full current list of North American institutions:

<http://www.sussex.ac.uk/americanstudies/undergraduate/>

Please note that you must attain an average of at least 50% in your first year in order to qualify for your year abroad. American universities will also see your whole first year array of marks and attendance and part of your second year. It is hence important to have a good record of attendance as well as sufficiently high marks, especially if you plan to apply to one of the more exclusive American institutions.

You will choose your American placement during the second year by researching different institutions and through dialogue with the Year Abroad Officer. The Sussex selection procedure will be explained clearly to you in meetings with Anne-Marie and the Study Abroad Office. You must attend these meetings in order not to miss out on important advice and information. Students tend to get their first or second choice of US university.

Reading weeks

In some modules you will have one week designated as a “reading week.” This is NOT a holiday and is to be used to catch up on reading for your module or to prepare for assessment. Normally you should not go home. Since reading weeks differ from Department to Department, and HAHP and English do not always have the same reading weeks, you should continue to attend classes in your other modules, if they are held.

Choosing your options

You will choose your options for the next academic year around the middle of the second term of the previous academic year. You will be sent an email by your departmental co-ordinator at the relevant time. In addition, you will be sent detailed descriptions of all the module available to you in order to help you make an informed choice. If you want further information, please drop in to see the tutor of the module you are interested in during their office hours (see below).

Student feedback and drop-in hours

Every member of teaching faculty holds “student feedback and drop-in hours” (sometimes also known as “office hours”) each week during term time, which will be advertised on their office doors and on Sussex Direct. These hours are for, among other things: following up material discussed in lectures or seminars; raising questions you still have; trying out new ideas; discussing any feedback you have received on written work or presentations. They are a form of contact hours available to you throughout your degree, should you wish to make use of them. You are strongly encouraged to “drop-in” during these hours or else make an appointment via email. (If a tutor is away without notice during a published office hour, please let the American Studies Co-ordinator know- see p.5).

Teaching and learning on the American Studies and History Degree

Modules on the American Studies and History degree are typically taught via a lecture which is 1 or 2 hours long, and smaller group seminars later in the week, which are also one or two hours long.

In addition to attending lectures and seminars, you are expected to do independent reading and note-taking and any other tasks the lecturer has set you for the week.

Much of your course material is found on Canvas <https://canvas.sussex.ac.uk/>, the University’s online learning platform, which you will need to check every week. You should be automatically subscribed to the Canvas sites for your modules but if not, please contact the American Studies Co-ordinator (see p.5).

Any additional reading material not on Canvas can be found via the University Library <http://www.sussex.ac.uk/library/> In addition to their physical copies of books, they have an extensive electronic library which is accessible remotely. Please contact your tutor if some recommended book or other reading is not there so they can order it for you.

All of your class times and locations, and the contact details of your tutors, are to be found in your timetable on Sussex Direct <https://direct.sussex.ac.uk/login.php>. Sussex Direct is the University's online tool for administrating your degree. Please contact the American Studies Co-ordinator (see p.6) if anything is missing or in error.

Helpful learning resources for your American Studies and History degree

As one of the first programmes of its kind in the United Kingdom, beginning in the early 60s with the help of Marshall Plan money from the U.S., American Studies at Sussex offers a rich and deep array of library resources to support undergraduate and postgraduate study. Whether your research interests tend toward literary or historical topics, the library at Sussex makes available to you an extensive collection of texts, historical documents, microforms, scholarly books, and journal holdings, all carefully and painstakingly assembled by American Studies experts over the past forty-odd years. We are adding to that collection on a daily basis with higher levels of library spending than ever before.

The following links are meant to serve as an entrée for students and scholars into the American Studies collection housed on campus:

Academic mentors

Mentors are HAHP PhD students who are available to help you with a range of study skills, such as time management and effective planning, help with presentations, planning and structuring written assessments, revision skills and exam preparation, contributing effectively to seminars, and making the best use of feedback. Mentors run lunchtime drop-in sessions every day of the week; see posters around the school for details.

Brushing up your general academic skills

The Careers and Employability Centre runs a range of workshops on specific skills such as: academic writing, planning and structuring essays; referencing; managing stress; revision; and more. See here for a range of online and in-person resources:

<http://www.sussex.ac.uk/careers/studyskills>

English Language skills

The Sussex Centre for Language Studies offers resources designed to help students improve their academic English and their understanding of British academic culture.

They offer free workshops, 'time to write' sessions and one-to-one tutorials throughout the academic year for students for whom English is not their first language. These are available to international/overseas students studying for a degree at the University of Sussex.

Contact the team on elas@sussex.ac.uk or see here for more details

<http://www.sussex.ac.uk/languages/english/elas>

Assessment

Whilst at Sussex you will sit a range of mid-term and end-of-term assessments, and get marks for them. In First Year, these marks will contribute to an overall mark which determines whether you can progress to Second Year. In Second and Final Year, your marks will be combined to compose your eventual degree classification. Degree classifications are as follows: First (70-100), 2.1 or 'Upper Second' (60-69), 2.2 or 'Lower Second' (50-59), Third (40-49), Fail (39 or below). Your Second Year marks will be weighted at 32%, your Year Abroad at 20% and your Final Year marks will be weighted at 48% of your overall degree mark.

Assessments may take the form of essays, gobbets, presentations, exams, dissertations, take away papers or in-class tests, for instance.

The Examination and Assessment Regulations govern the way in which all taught students – undergraduate and postgraduate – are examined and assessed at the University of Sussex. Follow this link to the full examination and assessment handbook.

'Assessment criteria' broadly describe the characteristics typically associated with various marks and classifications. For American Studies Assessment Criteria, follow the links below:

<http://www.sussex.ac.uk/hahp/internal/documents/assessment-criteria.doc>

Feedback on your work

Written feedback will normally be provided to all students on all assessments within three weeks of the assessment deadline. If it is necessary to return comments after this time, every effort will be made to notify students in advance, but please remember that sometimes there are unexpected delays for reasons beyond our control (e.g. staff illnesses).

We aim to make our feedback clear and helpful, giving you constructive information about how to improve which you can take forward to other assessments in the rest of your degree. If anything is unclear about a piece of feedback, or you don't feel it has been as helpful as it might be, we strongly encourage you to discuss it further with your lecturer or tutor during an office hour. If you have a complaint about a piece of feedback, please contact the School Director of Teaching and Learning (see above), about it and they will try to resolve the matter

In addition to written feedback, you will get informal feedback during seminars, as you discuss, explore and clarify new ideas with your tutor and fellow students.

Electronic submission

Students taking first and second year modules will usually be asked to submit assessments electronically where assessments are text-based, for example, an essay. Your Sussex Direct webpages and module handbook will give all assessment details, including whether the assessment is to be submitted via e-submission through Sussex Direct or in hard copy via the School Office. Feedback for all e-submission assessments will also be provided electronically.

Please refer to the frequently asked questions available on the following webpage for further information:

www.sussex.ac.uk/adqe/standards/examsandassessment/esubmission

Turnitin

You are encouraged to use the internet-based text-matching service, Turnitin, prior to submitting your assessments. This may help you identify problems with your referencing.

Turnitin is also used during the marking process as a means of checking the originality of submitted work. From 2014/15 all assessments submitted electronically via e-submission will be uploaded to the Turnitin database and an Originality Report will be made available to the marker. Please refer to the frequently asked questions available on the following webpage for further information:

www.sussex.ac.uk/adqe/standards/examsandassessment/esubmission

Late Submission

Should you miss an assessment submission deadline (for whatever reason) you may still submit the assessment after the published deadline. However, this will incur a penalty, as follows:

- Work submitted up to 24 hours late shall incur a penalty deduction of 5 percentage points (not 5% of the actual mark)
- Work submitted after 24 hours and up to 7 days late shall incur a penalty deduction of 10 percentage points (not 10% of the actual mark)
- No work shall be accepted after the 7 day penalty period has elapsed

Exceptional Circumstances - please see the Student Life website

The Student Life Centre

The Student Life Centre offers information and advice to all Sussex Students. Our aim is to help you to gain the best university experience you can, whatever your circumstances, by ensuring if you run into problems you get appropriate guidance and support.

The Student Life Centre is based in the heart of the campus: on the ground floor at the side of Bramber House. There are lots of ways to access our service. We are open from 9.00 am – 5.00 pm every week day, you can drop in to see us, call 01273 876767, email studentlifecentre@sussex.ac.uk or make an appointment – just go onto your Sussex Direct site, click on your 'Study' tab and then on Student Life Centre. You can select the advisor you wish to see at a time that suits you.

Amongst the many issues we can help you with are:

- Personal concerns affecting study progress or well-being.
- Funding and finance including scholarships, bursaries and hardship funds.
- Sources of help to improve academic performance – identifying obstacles to learning.

- Understanding university systems and regulations in relation to assessment, services, complaints, conduct, and discipline.
- Progression, intermission and withdrawal processes - discussion and support.
- Referrals to other professional services on campus.
- Exceptional circumstances claims help.
- If you don't know who to talk to or who to ask – start at the Student Life Centre.

Because we are also a proactive service you may be contacted directly by the SLC while you are a student here as we may wish to offer you particular support. This may be, for example, in response to concern from your School about your attendance, participation or engagement with your course.

Good academic practice

The University takes academic misconduct very seriously, as does the American Studies Department. Academic misconduct includes plagiarism, collusion, and personation (getting someone else to write work for you). It is your responsibility to find out what constitutes plagiarism, collusion, and personation, and to avoid them. If in doubt, please ask your tutors. Here are some useful links:

Your feedback to us

We like to hear from you how we are doing and how we might improve things. There are several ways you can get in touch:

- Informal feedback half way through the module, normally taken in class by your module tutor (if this doesn't happen, please ask your tutor, or failing that, alert the Director of Teaching and Learning – see p.5).
- Electronic course evaluation questionnaires after the module is over (you will be sent an email with a link).
- A chat with your lecturer or tutor passing on any concerns you have.
- A chat with your Student Rep. For information about the Student Rep system, and to find your Rep, please see here <https://www.sussexstudent.com/student-reps/for-students/>
- If you have a major concern that you can't resolve with your tutor, please contact either the Director of Student Experience or the Director of Teaching and Learning (see p.5).

What do to if you decide to change course

We recognise that sometimes students can feel after some reflection that a course is not for them, and wish to change to some other more suitable course. If this describes your situation, please see the Curriculum and Assessment Officer Molly Butterworth (Arts A7, M.P.J.Butterworth@sussex.ac.uk) who will guide you through the process of applying to make a change. If you want advice on changing course, please see the Director of Student Experience, Hester Barron (Arts A151, H.Barron@sussex.ac.uk).
