

Euroscepticism in Europe after Brexit: Aftermaths and consequences

30th June 2017

The Moot Room, Freeman Building, University of Sussex

10.30-11.00	Registration and Welcome
11.00-12.15	Session 1: Mapping Eurosceptic responses to Brexit and other crises Prof Paul Taggart and Prof Aleks Szczerbiak (University of Sussex) Discussant: Dr Nick Startin (University of Bath)
12.15-13.15	Lunch and Discussion on European Elections with experts on French, German and Czech Politics Prof Jocelyn Evans (University of Leeds) Prof Dan Hough (University of Sussex) Dr Sean Hanley (University College London School of Slavonic and East European Studies)
13.15-14.30	Session 2: The Twelve Days of Brexit: Any Lessons for Eurosceptics in other EU states? Matthew Elliot (Brexit Central/Legatum Institute) Discussant: Dr Brigid Fowler (Hansard Society)
14.40-14.45	Tea/Coffee Break
14.45-16.00	Session 3: The short- and long-run effects of Brexit on Euroscepticism outside the UK Dr Simon Usherwood (University of Surrey) Dr Sean Hanley (University College London School of Slavonic and East European Studies)
16.00-16.15	Concluding Remarks Prof Tim Bale (Queen Mary, University of London)

This workshop is sponsored by the ESRC 'UK in a Changing Europe' programme and the European Parties Elections and Referendums Network (EPERN).

There is no conference fee but spaces are limited and you must register in advance by contacting Jake Watts at:
J.T.Watts@sussex.ac.uk.