Useful resources for a creative job search

If you want to find organisations to contact and ask if they could offer you a placement year, have a look at the following:

- www.linkedin.com - If you are a member of LinkedIn, you can join groups which are relevant to your interests. This will let you see where other group members work. You can also search companies by keyword and filter by location etc.
- www.ukspa.org.uk - the UK Science Parks Association site has links to science parks across the UK, e.g. Cambridge Science Park directory of organisations - <https://www.cambridgesciencepark.co.uk/company-directory/>
- www.rcuk.ac.uk - Government research centres and institutes are normally funded (at least in part) by one of the UK Research Councils. Check each Research Council for lists of its funded institutes.
- www.bionow.co.uk - a NW membership organisation for bioscience, biomedical and life-sciences, drug discovery and development and more. The site includes news, a members' directory and jobs.
- <http://unitedlifesciences.org> - links to other organisations like Bionow across the UK and beyond.
- www.labhoo.com - searchable directory of thousands of companies with a detailed level of classification.
- www.airto.co.uk/our-members.html - AIRTO is a membership organisation for a number of commercial and government funded research organisations and institutes.

Writing a cover letter to ask for a placement:

- Example speculative cover letter:

<https://www.sussex.ac.uk/webteam/gateway/file.php?name=speculative-letter-for-placement-2018.pdf&site=3>

- Remember to add in to your letter to them a link to information on our website about how to go about employing a placement year student:
<http://www.sussex.ac.uk/about/recruit-graduates-students/placements>
- Include your CV – find out about the skills required in the kind of job you're interested in by looking at the job profiles on
