

Research Hub:

Developing Pedagogic Research in Higher Education

Wednesday 5 June / 1-3pm
Room G31, Jubilee Building

CTLR Research Hub is open to all and we would really welcome ESW doctoral researchers to join us

In this session, Dr Christine Smith from the University of Suffolk will explore, in practical ways, the kinds of pedagogic research it is possible for tutors in Higher Education to undertake, focusing on constructivist and interpretivist approaches. Key elements in the research process, including good practice in research design, ethical approval, dissemination and outputs will also be discussed.

Christine will draw upon her own experience both of conducting pedagogic research over 29+ years and in supervising internal, small-scale research projects, such as those undertaken by participants on the Postgraduate Certificate in Academic Practice at the University of Suffolk.

The final part of the session will look at resources and consider sources for funding pedagogic research.

We hope that the Research Hub will leave you feeling supported and informed and that you will wish to come back and share your questions and experiences again.
